

Mandating a copyright flag of this kind is a horrible idea. Not only will this have **devastating** impact on fair-use it is also not going to work. People can just use old equipment, and hackers will overcome the system. Meaning this will only work to hurt regular consumers. I also fear the effects of involving the government in PC production, not only could this cause **serious** economic harm (will people in other countries abandon our products) it also raises serious privacy and other concerns.